

Figure 0.1: Work flow for automated annotation of genes. Different colors means; yellow: results that are integrated to a database within R; green: external softwares that are called from within R; purple are information that needs to be provided and curated; red are the reports for the end users; and white are steps that are not encompassed by the pipeline.